
Call for Papers

2023 ECMI Annual Conference

Deadline: 10 September 2023

The European Capital Markets Institute (ECMI) is calling for the submission of research papers in the area of capital markets and their functioning.

A committee of academics and international experts will select the best paper and award the author(s) a EUR 5 000 prize and the opportunity to present the findings at the 2023 ECMI Annual Conference that will take place in October/November 2023. This prestigious international event brings together policymakers, academics and industry representatives to take stock of recent developments in European capital markets and analyse their long-term implications.

Research papers should cover (but are not limited to) one or more of the following areas:

- The competitiveness and attractiveness of EU financial actors and European capital markets
- Open strategic autonomy in financial services
- The Capital Markets Union as a driver of economic recovery and resilience (e.g. Listing Act, Retail Investment Strategy, SME financing, a green recovery)
- 22 years on from the Lamfalussy Report, competitive regulation and ESAs review
- Central bank digital currencies, digital payments and digital services for retail investors (e.g. regulation, investor protection, financial stability, interoperability)
- Resilience and resolution of market infrastructures (e.g. trade repositories, central counterparties)
- The impact of monetary policies on capital markets
- Bond markets, money market funds, and consolidate tape
- MiFID II (e.g. transparency, liquidity, research coverage, data)
- EU-UK capital markets, the cost of fragmentation and the loss of liquidity
- Sustainable Finance (e.g. sustainability, ESG standards, financial reporting, green sentiment, alternative data)

ECMI encourages the submission of empirical research papers with relevant implications for the European capital markets legislative framework. Additionally, the research paper should meet the following criteria:

1. Papers should be original and not previously published in an academic journal or other official review. Non-published reports produced within PhD research projects or selected parts of PhD dissertations (provided these are not published) are acceptable.
2. The submission of the paper should be approved by all authors and tacitly or explicitly by the responsible institutions where the work on the paper was undertaken.

3. Submitted papers should be of publishable quality and make a significant and novel contribution. Submissions will be evaluated in terms of their originality, clarity, analytical rigour and policy relevance.
4. Papers should be submitted in English, include an abstract of no more than 200 words, and not exceed 50 pages (including table of contents, appendices, annexes and list of references).
5. Any direct contact by one or more of the authors with members of the Academic Committee should be fully disclosed in the submission email.
6. Selected papers will go through two blind-reviewing rounds by the Organising Committee and Academic Committee.
7. Upon acceptance of the prize, the author(s) of the winning paper will be asked to complete and sign a 'Declaration of Originality' and to authorise the publication of the paper as part of the ECMI Working Paper Series.
8. Two files should be submitted by email to: ecmi@ceps.eu (cc: apostolos.thomadakis@ceps.eu) by midnight 10 September 2023 containing:
 - i. A title page with the title, the abstract and the full contact details of the author(s) (full name, address, job title, affiliation and contact details). Contact details should appear on the front page only
 - ii. The full text of the paper with title and abstract in an anonymous format. No contact details, name(s) or any other information that could identify the author(s) should appear on the paper.
9. Failure to meet any of the requirements above can result in the paper's exclusion from consideration in the competition.
10. To avoid any doubt, ECMI reserves the right to extend the submission deadline, to close it earlier than planned or not award the prize at all.
